Well we did it again! With the help of our advertisers and event organizers large and small, we managed to fill a record 96 pages with rides and races in this edition of the Rocky Mountain Tour and Race Guide. I remember the first time we put out the publication — actually there were two, a race and a tour version, each 32 pages long — eight years ago.

The popularity of cycling is growing; more people commute to work and school and have discovered the health benefits of riding in addition to the added pleasure of not sitting in traffic.

Programs like the largely successful Durango Devo, high school leagues, and clubs are helping develop kids into lifelong cyclists. Along those lines, take a look at pages 54 to 61, the athlete profiles

“While you’re at it, gift them a copy of this guide.”

(I have to say it’s my favorite section), and you will see what I mean. Rides are evolving as well with the gran fondos, gravel grinders and ultra-endurance events expanding upon the classic and familiar century format. Mountain bike enduros have gained in popularity, as have cyclocross races, and both have opened up new opportunities for everyone who want to give racing a try in a less intimidating fashion. Kids’ races and family-friendly events are also on the rise.

All and all, there are plenty of fantastic opportunities out there, with events to suit everyone’s desires and passions. We’ve inventoried more than 1,000 of them — it’s no wonder we needed more pages.

Cycling in the Rocky Mountain region is vibrant and new events as well as the long-established ones are shaping this season into a grand cru. So like I did eight years ago, I urge you to read through the guide, find an event that appeals to you, and go. Bring a friend, it makes it even more enjoyable. While you’re at it, gift them a copy of this guide.

Keep the rubber side down, we’ll see you out there.

THREE KEY YOGA POSES FOR CYCLISTS

Kari Studley, PT, DPT, CYT

As you build a base for the season, this is the perfect time to incorporate basic yoga poses into a stretching and training program. These are helpful because they provide great counter postures and stretches to the traditional forward-flexed cycling position. They also strengthen muscles and joints through multi-directional movements and balance coordination. Below are three poses that can be performed without a yoga mat, combine basic strengthening with gentle stretching, and are practical for cyclists at any level.

Bridge

This pose is a great foundation for cycling and core stabilization. It also strengthens the hamstrings and gluteus muscles in a movement similar to pedaling.

How to Perform: Lay on your back with knees bent, hip-width apart, and feet parallel to each other. A firmer floor surface will be easier for balance. Exhale and flatten the back to the floor through engaging the abdominal muscles (Figure 1). Press through the feet and legs to lift up the hips until a stretch is felt on the front of the thighs (Figure 2). The goal is to elevate the hips so they are in line with the shoulders and knees. Stop immediately if you feel back pain. This exercise should be felt in the back of the hips and legs and the stretching quads on top. You can hold this pose for 5 to 30 seconds and/or perform sets of 10 to 20 repetitions.

Downward Dog

This gentle inversion pose is a nice way to open and stretch the shoulders, back, hamstrings and calf muscles. It also works on balance and exploring weight bearing through the hands and feet. To make this pose more cycling-specific, observe how much weight you are pressing through the extremities. Engage your core by lifting your belly button toward the spine/hips to lighten the load going through the palms.

How to Perform: Start in a hands and knees position with fingers pointed forward, slightly wider than the shoulders and keep feet hip width apart. Simultaneously, press through the hands and feet to lift the hips up (Figure 3). Squeeze the shoulder blades together toward the spine to help lift the hips up so the sit bones are the apex, pointed at the ceiling. There should be about three feet of space between your hands and toes. To increase the calf stretch, gently press the heels downward toward the ground. Weight should be distributed fairly equally between the extremities. Ensure that the elbows and knees have a slight bend to minimize joint compression. Hold this pose for 5 to 30 seconds or up to 10 breaths. Repeat 2 to 10 times.

Modified Boat

If you only have time for one yoga pose, this challenging posture is the one to do. It combines core stabilization, hamstring, arm and shoulder stretching through advanced variations. Consistent practice will improve posture and balance on the bike.

How to Perform: Start in a seated position with knees bent and toes touching the floor. With hands placed behind the knees for extra stability, lift the chest tall and balance your weight on the sit bones (Figure 4). This starting position is often enough of a challenge, especially when trying to stay centered on the sit bones. If you are feeling stable, lift one foot off the ground, keeping the back tall, until a hamstring stretch is felt or the back begins to slump (Figure 5). The next challenge is letting go of the legs and to reach the arms forward. You can work your way up by letting go one arm at a time (Figure 6). Remember to keep the core engaged and weight centered on the sit bones regardless of what your legs or arms are doing. The final variation involves balancing on the sit bones with both feet and hands lifted (Figure 7). With all boat variations, start with holding the pose for 5 seconds, working your way up to 30 seconds. With leg and arm lift variations; you can count each extremity movement as repetitions or hold in that variation for 5 to 30 seconds.

HANDLEBAR BAG

By Martina Brimmer, Swift Industries

Perched at the top of an alpine climb, I rifle through my Paloma handlebar bag for a well-earned snack. A spork, multi-tool, camp knife and a little bottle of iodine tablets all stand at the ready in the handy interior pockets of the bag, while the rest of it is chalk-full of the daily essentials of adventuring by bicycle. For this eight-day circumnavigation of the Olympic Mountains, my bike is also outfitted with panniers and a saddle bag, but I have designated the invaluable space in front of my handlebars for my camera, sunscreen and the base layers I peel off as I work my way from ridge to ridge along foothills of the Northwest mountain range.

The most important features of any handlebar bag are:

1. Simple access to its contents
2. Optimized use of handlebar space
3. A secure and reliable mounting system

Easy access is a must. This minimizes stopping to pull out the basics along the way. Choose a bag that opens from the rider's side and has a visible map case for queue sheets and charts. Another thing to consider: features like a zipper closure might be more challenging to open while riding than a basic flap.

The mounting design determines how stable the luggage is on the bicycle. Prioritize a bag that does not sway or rattle. There are a few common ways to mount a handlebar bag, the first being with straps: two that wrap around the bars and one that goes around the stem. The second is by using a specially designed metal frame; some can be installed to the bars and at the stem, while other designs mount to the brake bosses, depending on the make of the bag's mounting system requirements. Finally, there's the randonneur rack and decaleur (quick-release) set-up.

When researching handlebar bags, weigh the importance of being able to detach the bag quickly for things like bringing it into a store to resupply food and other goodies. In many cases it can remain connected to the bicycle, but if you're carrying valuables, prioritize a bag that features a quick release mounting system.

For long distance riding and touring, size is a very important consideration. The ideal volume of a handlebar-mounted bag will allow for practical packing, but shouldn't tempt overloading to the point where it impacts the steering.

The Paloma, referred to above, has a stiff interior so that it bears weight while keeping its shape. Inner pockets add the ability to organize small belongings and leave space for large items to fill the main body. Subtle features protect your necessities from inclement weather and the bag is easy to open from the saddle. It mounts to the handlebars with either the Rixen + Kaul Klickfix System (detachable), or the Nitto F-15 frame (fixed). Both mounting designs place the bag flush with the top of the bars and add rigidity to make riding with forward weight responsive and secure.

The classic randonneur bag is boxy and rests on a traditional small front rack. The bag is held in place by an additional metal bracket that attaches to the headset or the faceplate of the stem, called a decaleur. Randonneuring demands steady cycling and riders look for fluid access to belongings without the need to slow or dismount. The bag should be stiff and stable on gravel terrain and chip seal and weather-tight through downpours and snow.

If you are heading out on a bike packing adventure you should look for specific remote riding features. It is critical to minimize breakable parts by avoiding metal brackets and racks — one doesn't want to have a mounting system fail in the middle of the wilderness.

Soft handlebar bags that also cradle a bedroll have been developed for mountain bike touring. These models mount to flat bars using straps and bring stability to the front load. Companies like Oveja Negra and Porcelain Rocket offer solid designs for singletrack touring. Bike packing gear tends to be modular, so bags and pouches can be added to the main set-up.

Integration with your bicycle

The bag you choose will be influenced by your handlebar and brake set-up. Basics to consider when researching a front bag include:

- The inside width of the drop bars
- Accounting for brake lever, shifters and cables to calculate if the bag will impede shifting
- Cable routing may interfere with or be inhibited by front luggage
- Consider how a bag will affect your riding position, especially if your hands most often rest on the flats of the bars
- Bar bags may not be compatible with cross-top/inline levers

Riding with a front load will change the way the bicycle steers. To avoid twitchy steering and speed wobbles, try not to overload the bag. If experiencing a dramatic difference in handling, lighten the load. Because randonneur-style bags are supported with a rack, they can accommodate more weight, but steering response to the additional weight may also be influenced by the bicycle's geometry.

Handlebar bags are a great accessory to distance or commuting cycling of any type, and are amazingly convenient for urban riding. They offer an easily accessible place for your essentials and provide the perfect spot for maps and cue sheets. The best designs make it easy to take the bag on and off and simple to carry over the shoulder when running errands or exploring.

Martina Brimmer is owner and co-founder of Swift Industries. She has been wrenching, pedaling, sewing and adventuring for over a decade. You'll find her on mountain summits, pushing the limits of the Oregon outback and commuting through the city. All Swift Industries baggage are made in-house, tried and tested in the Pacific Northwest. Visit them in Ballard or at builtbyswift.com.

CLOSER LOOK

June 27: Tour de Prairie

Starting in the state capitol, this ride will boost appreciation of the diverse landscapes and diverse scenery the region has to offer. Found on the 25-mile route, a wind-turbine farm in Wyoming's ranching land and open plains underscores the importance of the state's natural resources. Stop by Curt Gowdy State Park while on the 50-mile, and enjoy the wide shoulder road to Medicine Bow National Forest (75 miles). For everyone, the journey begins up scenic Happy Jack Road, the original link between Cheyenne and Laramie before Lincoln Highway and I-80. Century riders cross I-80 at its highest point (8,640'), and enjoy a great view of the 13-foot bronze Lincoln Bust at the summit, commemorating the visionary behind the first transcontinental highway. For riders who choose to ride all 100 miles, the elevation gain makes the ride not only beautiful, but challenging.

July 11: Tour de Ladies BC

Tour de Ladies is the only all-women ride south of Denver, as well as one of the few bicycling events in Denver's southern suburbs. Starting in Parker and looping through northeastern Douglas County, both the 30- and 62.5-mile routes feature rolling hills, relatively low-traffic roads, and fantastic views of the Front Range. The last portion of the ride is along a flat bike path for an easy finish. The ride not only provides some amazing scenery, but a chance to ride with a supportive group of women. A finish line festival will be waiting to celebrate sisterhood and the accomplishment of each rider. Registration supports the Crisis Center, which exists to end domestic violence through advocacy, education, and prevention while helping communities live free of violence. Limit 500 riders.

Location: Parker, CO
Organizer: Becki Rupp
Website: tourdeladies.com
Distance (mi): 30, 62.5
Services: lunch, mechanical/medical, SAG, jersey for sale, finish line festival, massage, swag bag, rest stops
Sponsors: Audi Denver, Colorado Riders Club

July 18: Desperado Dual

In the center of Utah's Color Country, this ride follows a spectacular route through the heart of the old west. Traveling some of the country's most scenic back roads, cyclists ride past national parks, historic communities, and old west vistas—it's like traveling through history! All routes start near Bryce Canyon National Park on East Center Street. The highway curves south and flows along the Sevier River into mountain scenery of pine-covered hillsides, stone walls, cut-outs, and high-desert grass and brush. The event offers various distances, including the flattest 200-mile ride in Utah. New for 2015 is the 150-mile route. Crystal clear air, scenic roads with low traffic, and mild summer temperatures make every distance a fantastic choice. Panguitch is a three and a half hour drive from Salt Lake City and barely seven from Denver. Limit 500 riders.

Location: Panguitch, UT
Organizer: Spingeeeks
Website: spingeeeks.com

August 1: Hotter than Heck – Utah Valley Century

The name of the oldest century ride in Utah is no joke as the route takes place around Utah Lake in the hottest part of the year. The 30- and 60-mile routes are out-and-back and keep to the east side of the lake, while the century option runs clockwise around it all. Though hot and dry, the scenery is spectacular and not to be missed. To boost the motivation of those who need to go fast, the top individuals and teams are rewarded with cash prizes. But for the majority of participants, this is still a fun, non-competitive ride that features a rolling start. Other giveaways are distributed at the post-ride festival, alongside an incredible meal and live music. A word of caution — drink lots of fluids. Benefits the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation.

September 26: Mountains to Desert Bike Ride

What is the best thing about riding from the mountains to a desert? It's mostly downhill. Other highlights? The amazing landscape found on this route. Starting in Telluride and ending in Gateway, riders roll through canyons, by bluffs, and along the Dolores and San Miguel Rivers for what is possibly the most beautiful ride in Colorado. Beginners would enjoy the shorter distance. For those who can't do without ascending, simply add the Summit Climb Ride or a detour to Unaweep Canyon. The Telluride 200 tests both endurance and stamina as it peeks into the Grand Valley before returning to Gateway. Two kid rides will take place the weekend prior to the event. Benefiting the Just for Kids Foundation, and every dollar raised is matched 100 percent by the Carstens Family Foundation.

September 27: Actavis CF Cycle for Life

Cyclists will enjoy mountain views as they leave Albuquerque Nexus Brewery en route to skirt the beautiful Sandia Mountains. Riding the North Diversion Channel Bike Trail and using city streets lead to the desert grassland and savanna at the western base of the mountain. Riders can always rely on the weather to be perfect when cycling in this region. The friendly rest stop volunteers and delicious pizza are a fan favorite on both the 35- and 65-mile routes. Must be 16 or older to participate. There is a minimum $150 fundraising requirement in support of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and the fight against cystic fibrosis, a disease that affects the lungs and digestive system of about 30,000 adults and children in the U.S. and 70,000 worldwide.

October 10: Park to Park Pedal – Extreme Nevada 100

The quiet and historic railroad town of Caliente comes alive for the annual Park to Pedal ride, featuring routes that pass through four of Nevada's unique state parks. First, riders go by the 1920s Mission-style train depot. For more than 40 years, Caliente was one of the major division points on the railroad line. Kershaw Ryan State Park is near by, and from there are miles of amazing beauty along Nevada's first Scenic Byway, Highway 93. Cycle through Cathedral Gorge State Park, the mining town of Pioche, as well as Spring Valley and Echo Canyon State Parks. Take in the breathtaking view of Meadow Valley on the way back to Kershaw-Ryan for a mouthwatering Dutch oven feast. Everyone looks forward to the pulled pork and hot cobbler. Expect unmatched hospitality on one of the best-supported rides.

CLOSER LOOK

May 16: The Wild Horse

Located in Cedar Mountain Wilderness, the start line is less than one hour from the heart of downtown, just south of Interstate 80. A vast and uncrowded area, riders can often bike for hours without encountering another vehicle or person. However, some 600 wild horses call this area home. The 76-mile, with its 5,000' of elevation gain, offers a challenging dirt-only ride, while the 31-mile Little Wild Horse is a valuable option. Both routes go over Hastings Cutoff pass, used by the Donner-Reed party on their ill-fated 1846 journey west. The event is timed for bragging rights only, and draw prizes are plentiful. Money from every ticket sold goes directly to the NICA Utah League Scholarship Fund, a national program focused on increasing the overall access to mountain bike leagues. Limit 300 riders. Pre-registration only.

Over the years, the Rocky Mountain area has seen a considerable number of its racers make it to the "big league." Many have joined the pro ranks and the region also counts its fair share of Olympians, World and National Champions. Their performances have inspired many who have the same dreams. For the second year, we have elected to use the race guide to feature some of those young talented and promising riders.

Category: Cat 3    Disciplines: MTB (DH and XC)

School: Crested Butte Community School

Team/club: Crested Butte High School

Coaches: Jason Lakey, Eddy Cohn, Ellie Atkins, Banks Kriz, Andrew Arnold, Jason Stubbe, Pete Curvin

Strengths: Rough, technical and steep downhill trails

Need to work on: Endurance

Favorite race: Colorado State Downhill Championships

Best results 2014: 4th State DH Championships; 17th HS XC State Championships

Highlight 2014: Opening day of the Evolution Bike Park and going to the Colorado State Downhill Championships

Career highlights: 2x Pinnacle Series Downhill overall winner; 4th State Downhill Championships

2015 goals: To start racing Enduro; 2015 Downhill Nationals

Long term goals: To podium at a national race

Who is your cycling idol and why? Rat Boy (Josh Bryceland). He has just started to make an appearance at World Cup Downhill races, but he has been very successful in them. One of the best riders out there, he had a really positive attitude after breaking his foot.

How did you get started? My dad got a new mountain bike and would go out before work. I asked to go with him and I had so much fun. I started to enjoy the sport more and more.

Anything else we should know about? I am really interested in building and maintaining trails. It's a great feeling to ride a section of trail that I have built.

Team/club: Peak Multisport/Café Velo

Coach: Ken Axford – Peak Multisport

Strengths: Climbing, time trial, sock fashion and triathlons

Need to work on: Mounts, dismounts and not swallowing bugs

Favorite race: Colorado Mini Classic

Best results 2014: State Champion RR, TT and HC (Jr. 13-14); 7th Youth Elite Triathlon Nationals

Highlight 2014: State Champion x 3

Career highlights: 2013 USA Triathlon Youth National Champion; winning the first bike race I ever entered; making amazing friends

2015 goals: Win the 2015 USAT Youth Elite National Triathlon; cycle at a regional or national level

Long term goals: Win the Olympics as a triathlete; ride in the Tour de France

Who is your cycling idol and why? Laurel Rathbun. She introduced me to competitive cycling. She has competed worldwide and is a very kind and generous person.

How did you get started? Through triathlons, my love for bike racing has grown.

Anything else we should know? I love the opportunities that cycling gives me to meet lots of different people. I am a competitive swimmer and love coloring my hair.

Team/club: MTB: Tokyo Joe's U23 Elite, Cross: SDG Factory Team
Coach: Ann Trombley
Strengths: Good climber and technical fun riding. Stubborn, dedicated and organized. I'm happy and that's the greatest strength of all.
Need to work on: I tend to overthink things. Get out of my own head.
Favorite race: Gowdy Grinder
Best results 2014: 1st Junior Internationale COPA AM-PM, Costa Rica
Highlight 2014: 1st Nationals (Junior 17-18), qualified for Worlds

Career highlights: 1st Iceman Cometh (x2); World Championship attendee; top 30 2014 CX Nationals (Elite)

2015 goals: Keep loving riding my bike; qualify for Worlds

Long term goals: Attend the Olympics; top 10 at Worlds

Who is your cycling idol and why? Erin Huck. We traveled together last year and she always gives me great life tips and tells excellent stories. I admire that she has managed to excel in cycling and in her engineering career.

How did you get started? My parents and I used to go on fun rides. One summer they signed me up for a camp called Singletrack Mountain Bike Adventures where I spent two to four days per week adventuring in the mountains. I later joined the Tokyo Joe's team and met my coach.

Disciplines: Road, MTB, Cyclocross School: Bingham High
Team/Club: Canyon Bicycles-Shimano Coach: Rob Hansen
Strengths: Climbing, endurance, smooth technically
Need to work on: Sprinting, exposure to heavy wind (I only weigh 100lb)
Favorite race: True Grit Epic
Career highlights: 3rd overall MTB Midweek Sport (34 Under); 1st overall ICUP Sport (13-15), 3 podiums at DMV in Utah Crit Series
2015 goals: Upgrade to Cat 3 (road), podium Junior only Larry Miller; top 10 varsity HS MTB
Who is your cycling idol and why? My dad, because even though he thinks I'll beat him he gets faster every year; Greg LeMond for his demeanor; Bernard Hinault for his tenaciousness.

How did you get started? When I was 9 or 10, my dad took me to some cyclocross races. After not cycling for two years I started mountain riding with him, and that transitioned into the road as well.

Strengths: Technical mountain bike and cyclocross skills
Need to work on: Power
Favorite race: 2013 24 Hour MTB Nationals — I was on the course during the storm that closed the course.
Best results 2014: 1st Whiskey Off-Road 25 Grand (Junior)
Highlight 2014: 5th at Cyclocross Nationals
Career highlights: 2014 24-Hour MTB Nationals (Fastest lap Junior), 4th

2014 MTB Nationals Short Track (Junior)

2015 goals: Race well at MTB Nationals

Long term goals: Compete in an international race

Who is your cycling idol and why? Katie Compton, because she is such a great cyclist and I was told I looked like a young Katie.

How did you get started? I participated in a triathlon camp and raced in 2012; I only liked the cycling part. I joined a Junior Devo team, which gave me a great intro to mountain biking and cross.

Anything else we should know? I was given my first, real mountain bike by a fellow female mountain biker when I first started. The mountain bike and cyclocross communities have been very friendly and encouraging. A supportive community really makes a difference.

Coach: Andrew Arnold, Banks Kriz and Blake Payton
Strengths: Not afraid, hover-biking, jumping
Need to work on: Gaining weight, growing bigger and wrenching on my whip
Favorite race: Central States Cup DH race on the new Captain Jack trail at Evolution Bike
Highlight 2014: Nailed the Avery trail rock-drop A-line jump at Evolution Bike Park
Career highlights: Undeclared and 1st Overall Crested Butte Pinnacle Series (Groms U12); 3rd Central States DH Cup (U18), 6th Colorado DH Championships (U14)

2015 goals: Get better about always squaring up to wet roots and cleaning and lubing my bike. Better finish at the State Championships

Long term goals: Race at Angelfire and ride in BC. Learn 360s, flat spins and the sickest tail whips. Get into MTB product development. Start a rock band, but I should probably learn an instrument or how to sing or something.

Who is your cycling idol and why? Brendan Fairclough and Cain Leonard because they're really smooth and they rip really hard.

How did you get started? My family operates an action sports camp for kids called Gravity Groms. Mom and Dad ride a lot and I guess it's in my blood. I also compete in Big MTN Freeride and Skiercross all winter. I always liked to descend as fast as I can.

Anything else we should know? I wear all the protection and pads I can get because DH can be dangerous. I'd like kids to know that doing outdoor action sports is so much better than watching them on TV or playing video games about it. Everyone can find a curb or pile of dirt to jump.

Best results 2014: 2nd Sea Otter, 3rd Nationals
Highlight 2014: NICA Varsity series winner
Career highlights: Sea Otter, I proved to myself I could run with the big dogs; 2014 UT NICA Varsity leader; 2013 UT NICA JV overall leader.
2015 goals: 1st US Nationals
Long term goals: Worlds team; keep riding and racing as long as I can; get more girls involved in riding/racing

Who is your cycling idol and why? Katrina Nash. She always pushes her limits and somehow manages to be at the top of her game. Lori Harward. She has done more for cycling than anyone I can think of, and has helped me in so many ways.

How did you get started? My dad used to race professionally and he always wanted me to race.

Anything else we should know? I just like having fun when I'm riding. I don't always take it as seriously, but I don't think that's such a bad thing. I have plenty of time to reach my potential and build the skills to race the world cup courses. You don't have to win everything as a junior athlete. My dad always says that if no one bleeds it's not a good ride, but I think it should be that if no one laughs it's not a good ride.

Career highlights: 2014 NMORS Champion; 2013 NMRRS Champion; 3rd 2014 NM Enduro Cup (Jr. 14-18)

2015 goals: Win the Double Crown — New Mexico Enduro Cup and NMORS cross country titles

Long term goals: Be a national champion in Enduro, and keep racing mountain bikes for as long as I can

Who is your cycling idol and why? Aaron Gwin. He is a great representative for USA mountain biking and a great cyclist.

How did you get started? I grew up riding bikes with my dad and family, and fell in love with this wonderful sport.

Anything else we should know? I would like to get a cycling scholarship to a good school such as Fort Lewis College in Durango, Colorado. I am first chair in the percussion section at my school, and play the drum set in my school's jazz band. I play baseball and love listening to Reggae and Alternative music. I want to thank all of the people who have believed in me and encouraged me to follow my dreams.

Highlight 2014: Racing and finding a new love for mountain biking
Career highlights: 3x Colorado TT Champion, Colorado RR Champion, 2nd Overall Colorado HS League MTB (Sophomore Div. I)

2015 goal: Do well in Varsity MTB races; win State TT; become a stronger rider

Long-term goals: Race in college; race and continue riding later in life

Who is your cycling idol and why? Jens Voigt because of his hard work and dedication to the sport, his team, and cyclists everywhere

How did you get started? My parents, my mom rides a lot and my dad races. I started racing when I was 8, and have been racing since.

Anything else we should know? Although it is nice to win races, there are more important things to cycling and racing. It helps you meet great people, stay fit, and learn many important life lessons through your experiences, whether good or bad.

2015 goals: MTB and cyclocross Nationals; setting a TT national record; straight As in school

Long term goal: To do my best and to smile every day

Who is your cycling idol and why? Nina Baum and Mindy Caruso, because even after all of their national recognition, they still have time to help me get better

How did you get started? My sister Hailey, who is an excellent athlete, encouraged me to start racing.

Anything else we should know? I love my bikes and I love to race.
